

collected can be used to respond to indicators or standards in a Forest plan or Wilderness Area plan without requiring a mandatory permit system to gather and record the data. Use of the Visitor Registration Card Form is one of the most efficient means of collecting data from visitors. It allows the Forest Service to collect data in remote locations, where it is not feasible to have permanent staffing.

The Visitor Registration Card Form allows managers to identify heavily used areas, to prepare restoration and monitoring plans that reflect where use is occurring, and in extreme cases, to develop plans to move forest users to lesser impacted areas. It also provides managers with information useful in locating lost forest visitors. Not having the Visitor's Registration Card Form could result in overuse and site deterioration in some environmentally sensitive areas. Furthermore, without the registration card, the Forest Service would be required to undertake special studies to collect use data, and could be pressed to make management decisions based on insufficient or inaccurate data.

The Visitor Registration Card Form provides information from wilderness and special management area visitors including name and address, area to be visited, dates of visit, length of stay, method of travel, number of people, and number of pack and saddle stock (that is, the number of animals either carrying people or their gear) in the group, and number of watercraft or vehicles.

Method of Collection

The Visitor Registration Card Form (FS-2300-32) is normally made available at un-staffed entry locations such as trailheads, and is completed by the visitor without Forest Service assistance. The information is collected once from visitors during their visit, by Forest Service employees who then analyze the information. The information collected will not be shared with other organizations inside or outside the Government.
